OUTLOOK-ICARE RANKINGS 2020

TRIBHUVAN TIWARI

Class of 2020

Karthick Sridhar & Syed Mujahid

ON March 11, 2020, the World Health Organization declared COVID-19 as a pandemic. Since then, the mystery virus has affected more than 4.5 million lives. According to UNESCO estimates, 68 per cent of the world's student population has been impacted by the outbreak. Higher education across the globe has never seen destabilisation of this kind before. The world today is radically very different from yesterday. We live and learn in a new world now.

Many of our academics say they will never teach again in the same way as before. While every university could foresee the advent of technology-based learning, COVID-19 has only fast tracked this process as every institution across the globe launched emergency remote teaching. While the earlier generations are familiar with the concept of AD and BC, the current and next generations will possibly term the world as BC (Before Covid) and AC (After Covid). In the new world today, institutions across the globe are re-examining how they teach, do research and serve their students, staff and alumni.

Education in India is at the cusp of transformation. Undergraduate lectures with hundreds of students in the audience are likely going to be replaced with recorded lectures that can be replayed, paused and shared. Student comments, and student responses to those comments, could make the lessons even more relevant and comprehensible. One-size-fits-all instruction can be augmented with more personalised digital content for each student. The tools to engage students online are only going to get better over time, and faculty are going to improve in how best to use digital instruction methods.

The road to recovery lies through change and innovation. Colleges and universities must use this crisis to put together a strong roadmap for recovery while assuring students a safe career.

METHODOLOGY

Institutions from across the country were invited to fill out a detailed questionnaire that went through a rigorous process of data validation and verification. A comprehensive desk-based research ensured all the data was vetted before taking into consideration for the next round of scoring. Wherever required, data was sourced from independent databases. The task was not complete before thousands of data points were analysed, hundreds of emails exchanged and several hundred man hours invested in contacting institutions and requesting them to upload all relevant data onto their web portal to ensure transparency, accuracy and data integrity, the three main pillars on which rests the Outlook-ICARE India University Rankings 2020. □

Background:

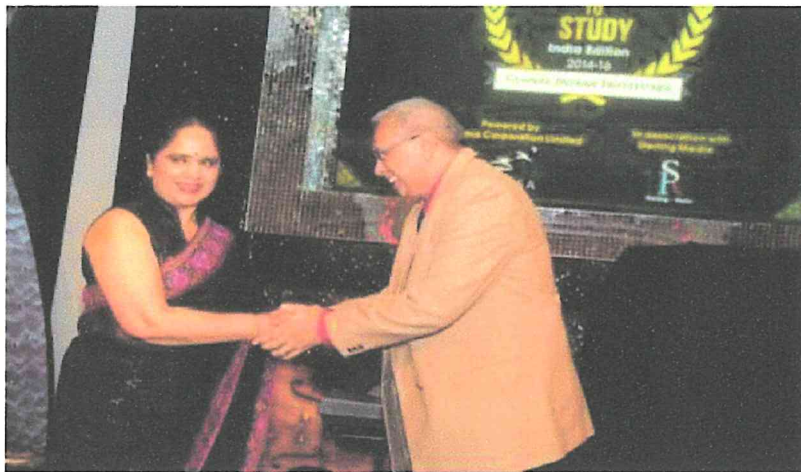

Skill Tree Knowledge Consortium has been established in 2012 with the objective of identifying, nurturing and developing consultancy for universities and institutions across India, and ultimately putting India back on the global map of education. For the first time this year, they examined universities and institutions across the country and identified them for their innovations and knowledge creation potentials. This has now come to be known as SkillTree Knowledge Consortium Global Indian Education League - Great Place to Study: Indian Edition. Twenty universities and institutions across the country were identified and they decided to recognize them in a public event organized in the House of Commons, London, UK.

The Event:

Skill Tree collaborated with the Lavasa Group and Sterling media to provide logistic, media and financial support to organize the award ceremony, held on 24 June 2014 from 12 noon to 3 PM, in the Churchill Room at the House of Commons (Parliament). The twenty institutions identified by Skill Tree Knowledge Consortium were invited to the House of Commons to receive the certificate of recognition at the hands of Member of Parliament, Mr. Bob Blackman in the esteemed presence of Lord Paul, Member of the House of Lords. Each institution was invited to make a 4-5 minute presentation highlighting their institution after the receipt of the certificate. The program ended at 3 PM and this was followed by high tea in the House of Lords with an opportunity to interact with the fellow recipients, members of the House of Lords and the press (BBC News and Times Now).

In the evening a gala event was organized at Madame Tussaud's Wax Museum where the institutions were presented with plaques, in the presence of educational literati from the various universities and the field of education.

Times Now will cover the event in its news channel and Skill Tree will come out with a White book on India Education featuring an article on Yenepoya University.
