Institutions ranked on innovation indicators

Around 674 institutions had participated in the ARIIA rankings this year compared with 496 institutions last year. Stating that it's the only private engineering college from Karnataka to make the cut, Nitte Meenakshi Institute of Technology said in a release that it has always placed emphasis on research and innovation.

The college also cited some of its "innumerable patents on several innovative products" and achievements, including securing first place in Smart India Hackathon-2020 conducted by the government on its latest invention of Wiki-pills, an app to detect a pandemic.

Other colleges in the top 25 include HKE Society's PDA College of Engineering (govt/govt aided colleges), JSS Academy of Higher Education & Research, Manipal Academy of Higher Education, Reva University and Yenepoya University (all in the self-financed universities category); and MS Ramaiah Institute of Technology, New Horizon College of Engineering and Sahyadri College of Engineering & Management in the self-financed college category.

The ranking rates educational institutions primarily on innovation-related indicators, including successful innovation and startups, intellectual property, technology transfer and commercialisation and annual budget spent on promoting and supporting these activities. The rankings have been broadly categorised into publicly funded institutions and private or self-financed institutions.
