7.2 - Best Practices

7.2.1 - Describe two best practices successfully implemented by the Institution during the year as per NAAC format provided in the Manual

Water recycling

The objective of this practice is to recycle wastewater to mitigate the dependence on groundwater for meeting the campus needs. Groundwater through on-campus open and bore wells is the primary source of freshwater for campus use. During the lean months, the groundwater from the campus cannot meet the demand, forcing procurement from external sources. The main challenge to start water recycling was the need for specialized infrastructure.

Currently, five sewage treatment plants have been set up in the main campus, which are operated under the supervision of an environmental engineer. This initiative is successful since it is supplying 222KL of treated water per day for landscaping and flushing purposes. This accounts for 21% of the total water used in the main campus.

Innovation center

The objective of this practice is to promote innovation. Academic research mainly aims at knowledge generation rather than product generation. The major challenges were to motivate the teachers and providing the necessary infrastructure. The gap was bridged by establishing a technology development and incubation center on the campus. This initiative is successful as the number of student/teacher-based start-ups that were none before inception has increased to 16. In addition, the average number of patents filed has increased from ~ 3 per year prior to inception to ~ 11 per year.

The Youth Red Cross chapters of two of our constituent units (Yenepoya Dental College and Yenepoya Nursing College) received district-level awards for organizing internships at the district hospital. Furthermore, the Youth Red Cross unit of one of our constituent units (Yenepoya Nursing College) received the district-level best-performing unit award. In addition, two of our NSS officers received National and State level awards.
